

ABSTRACT

The present disclosure relates to an appliance configured for connection to a network and communication with a device connected to the network. In one embodiment, the appliance comprises a processing device configured to control
5 operation of the appliance, memory including logic configured to receive software that facilitates communication between the appliance and the device from a software source, and network interface devices with which the appliance communicates with the software source.